A motorist accused of deliberately running over and killing two Egyptian goslings in the Cape Town CBD last week has been identified and traced, the SPCA said on Thursday.

"We can confirm a case has been opened [on Wednesday] with Cape Town central police," said Cape of Good Hope SPCA spokesperson Belinda Abraham.

The SPCA has been overwhelmed by support from Capetonians and experts, who have offered to assist with the case against a motorist who ran over and killed two Egyptian goslings in the Cape Town CBD.

After the incident was captured on video and camera on Friday, a forensic videographer offered expertise for any court appearances free of charge, Cape of Good Hope SPCA spokesperson Belinda Abraham said on Monday.

Others said they would help with a private prosecution if the State chose not to proceed with the case, she said.

"We have had such great support... it says a lot about Cape Town and the community.

"Egyptian geese are particularly bonded with their young," she explained.

Using the vehicle registration, they identified the owner and were still trying to establish whether that was the same person who had been in the driver's seat.

The SPCA was compiling the docket and would soon open a case of animal cruelty at the Cape Town Central police station.

Among those who posted the incident on social media was WCED ministerial spokesperson Jessica Shelver, who described the incident as "heartless".

Shelver posted on Facebook that the driver had bumped into the geese on purpose.

According to Abraham, the vehicle's windows were down at the time and witnesses said that they tried to prevent the man from driving away.
